

VPL Skin Rejuvenation

Get the facts...

VPL skin treatments are targeted towards skin that is suffering from the effects of ageing, but more than just being a wrinkle treatment, VPL treats all of the signs of ageing.

So whether your skin qualms lie in the presence of freckles, broken capillaries, dark spots, blotchy skin, redness, enlarged pore size or uneven pigmentation, VPL can help! And, of course, it does soften those dreaded crow's feet as well!

How does it work?

Well, briefly, VPL uses light projected in different colours and at different wavelengths to trigger reactions in the structure of the skin and produce a smooth more even tone.

What results can I expect?

- One VPL treatment will increase your skins collagen production by a huge 42%!
- A reduction or removal of freckles, pigmentation and age spots,
- A reduction of unwanted redness,
- treatment of fine lines and wrinkles,
- a reduction in active acne
- Thread veins on the face are successfully treated.

What is the treatment like?

Before beginning your first VPL treatment, your Boheme therapist will go through a thorough consultation with you, involving information about your skin, health status and tanning history to ensure that you will receive the most effective treatment possible.

The actual treatment is quite short, and with only minimal discomfort while the light waves are used on your skin.

Some people liken it to a small rubber band flicking against your skin.

Downtime

With no down time, you can have your treatments performed at any time of day and return to work with no visible signs of treatment. Recovery is generally immediate or overnight, depending on the size and location of the treatment. The area may be a little red for a few hours & pigment spots and sundamage may increase in colour temporarily if a pigmentation treatment has been performed.

Can I combine VPL with other skin care modalities?

Yes. Sometimes the best results are obtained by combining VPL treatments with skin peels, microdermabrasion, and vitamin infusions.
